

Report on 2024 [Student Sharing] Study in China 17 July 2024, 2:00-3:30 pm (Phnom Penh Time)

On July 17th, 2024, SEAMEO TED, in cooperation with its partners, CATECP and Go Study, successfully co-hosted “the 2024 [Student Sharing] Study in China” on Insights, Experiences, and Achievements from Studying in China. The event featured four international students from Congo and Cambodia who shared their experiences and gains from their studies in China.

Group Photo

Opening Remark

The opening remarks were delivered by Mr. Khat PrumSochetra, Deputy Director of SEAMEO TED. He expressed his hope that the event would provide more students with an authentic understanding of studying in China and offer valuable experiences for those considering studying in China.

opening remark photo

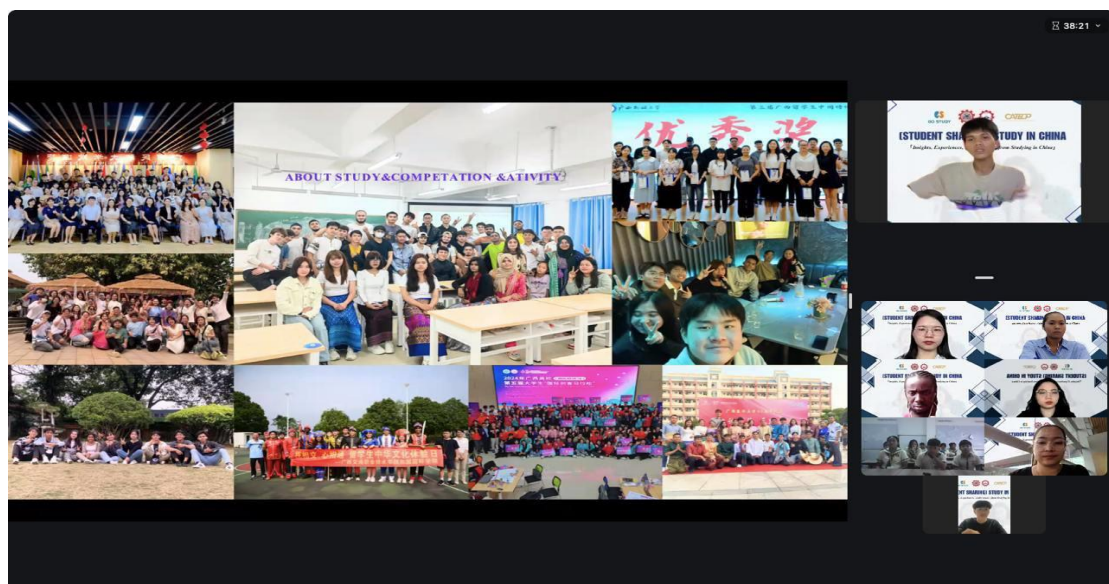

Student Introductions and Photo Sharing Session

Diego Matingu, an international student from Zhejiang Normal University in China, shared his experiences learning Chinese and participating in activities during his studies in Guangxi, and he introduced his new book about the challenges and triumphs of African students in China.

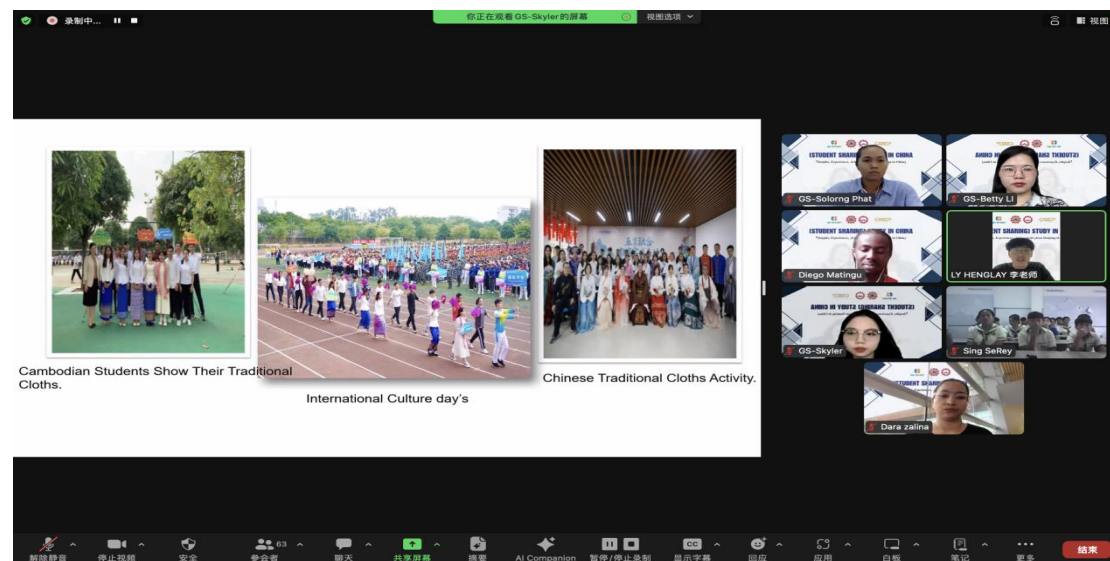

Diego Matingu's sharing

Nhun Veng, an international student from Guangxi Transportation Vocational and Technical College, shared his experiences studying in China. He introduced how to use various Chinese payment platforms, shopping platforms, and transportation tools. Additionally, he provided insights into the activities and competitions he participated in during his studies.

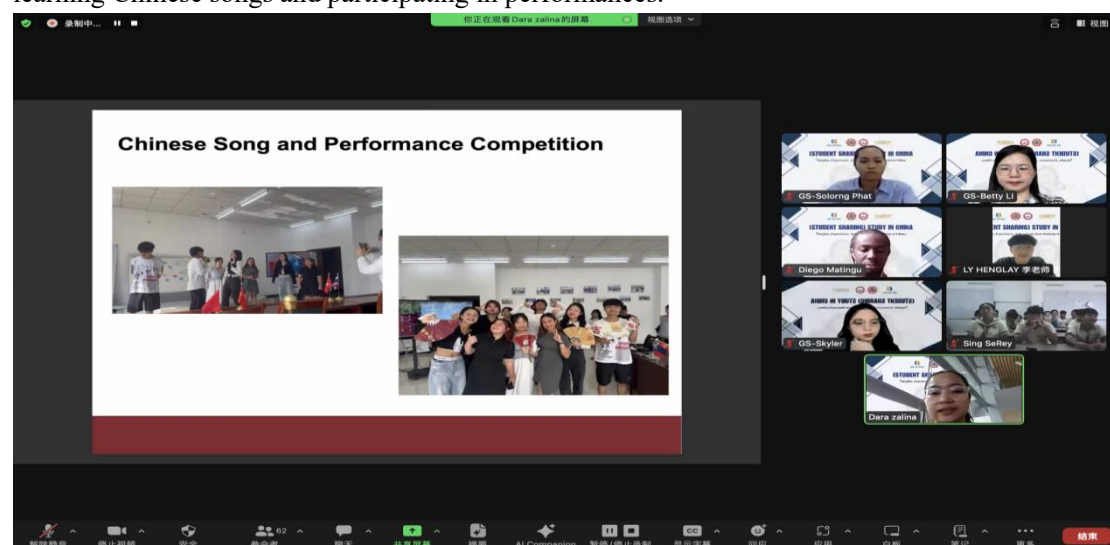

Nhun Veng's sharing

Ly Henglay, an international student from Guangxi College of Water Resources and Electric Power, shared important tips for studying in China, his experiences learning Chinese, and his involvement in cultural exchange activities.

Ly Henglay's sharing

Dara Zalina, an international student from Zunyi Medical University, shared her experiences learning Chinese songs and participating in performances.

Dara Zalina's sharing

Panel Discussion Session

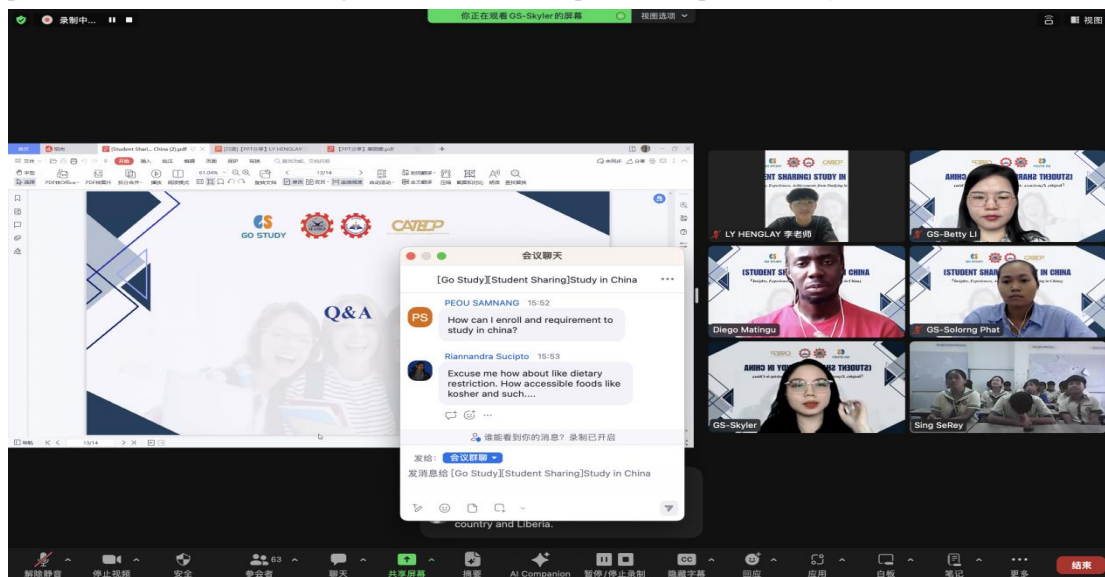

During the panel discussion session, the moderator asked the four international students questions about their experiences studying in China, including how they adapted to cultural differences, the benefits they gained, and the changes they experienced. All four students actively shared their insights and experiences.

Panel Discussion photo

Q&A Session

In the Q&A session, the audience displayed great enthusiasm, posing a variety of questions about studying in China to the four student speakers. The speakers responded to each question with patience and detail, addressing the audience's inquiries comprehensively.

Q&A session photo